PARTIE I

Jazbu 1

1. Praise be to the Manifest Truth (Al-Ḥaqq al-Mubīn, Allah), He whose Being is evident to me, for the clear Book (the Qur'an) and for all His blessings.

2. I praise my Lord, the Immense, with abundant praise that never ceases, invoking blessing upon a Generous one (Muḥammad) who led the creatures to the Giver of blessings (Allah).

3. I give thanks to the Lord of the Glorious Throne, with a thanksgiving met by increase, greeting with peace the Incomparable one (Muḥammad) with all my breast and my speech.

4. I gave Him thanks for singling me out for the service of the Effacer (Al-Māḥī, Muḥammad), the sublime; a service rendered openly, and He loosed my fetters.

5. To Him my words are addressed, calling to what He loves, persevering; and He has led my aims to me, as provision for the Abode of Generosity (Paradise).

6 O our Lord, O our Lord, O our Lord, O our Lord! O our Lord, accept our striving through the Chosen One (Muḥammad), the Revered.

7 For the Chosen One (Muḥammad), for whom blessing and peace are sought, together with the eulogy of every year, I have asked of Him who honours (Allah).

8 Bless him who was made the Pole of existence (Quṭb al-wujūd) when he descended into it, and his Family, rich in gifts, and his Companions, and honour them.

9 Bless him who was made the best of Prophets, the favoured one, when our father (Adam) still lay in his clay; and magnify him.

10 And grant peace, O my Lord, to the Seal of the Prophets and of the chosen Messengers, our venerated Imām (Muḥammad).

11 And bless, O Lord of Grace, the Messenger of Mercy, the bolt of the gate of retribution, the cause (of the creation) of every soul.

12 And grant peace, O my Everlasting Refuge (Aṣ-Ṣamad), to the Prophet Muḥammad, his Family and those who praise, and be with whoever follows in his footsteps.

13 O Lord of Permanence and Eternity, accept my services from me, and through them please him who holds precedence (Muḥammad), O You who illumine the path.

14 He is the choicest of the Arabs, he grants what is needed, he is the way of seeking, the physician of the sick.

15 Bless the Gate of Guidance, far-reaching, dispenser of munificence, lion against the foes, effacer of perdition, gateway of the heights and of generosity.

16 And grant peace to the Trustworthy (Al-Amīn, Muḥammad): he is the Firm and the Strong, he is the Protector and the Worthy of this praise; and honour him.

17 He is the Incomparable and the Glorious, he is the Dutiful and the Singular, who with uprightness leads to the Gardens whoever was blind (in spirit).

18 Pour forth blessing and peace, O All-Powerful, upon Your Illuminating Lamp (as-Sirāj al-Munīr, Muḥammad): he is the Bearer of glad tidings and the Warner, with punishments and with blessings.

19 He is the Messenger of Mercy, he is vast in mercy, he is the master of eloquence, he is the Messenger of the great battle (al-malḥama).

20 Pour forth blessing and peace forever, O You who sufficed me against grief, upon the Radiant Aḥmad (Muḥammad), and be with me in Your favours.

21 Adorn my outward and my inward with beauty through the Pure One (Muḥammad), O You who, by his rank, erase my grave sins and my lesser faults.

22 O You with whom is my hope, on my behalf pour forth Your blessing upon the Enwrapped One (Al-Muzzammil, Muḥammad), together with all the perfected and all the communities.

23 And grant peace, O Originator (Al-Badīʿ), to the Obeyed and the Obedient: he is the Intercessor whose intercession is accepted, Your magnified Beloved.

24 Bless the Venerated one (Muḥammad), O You who have shielded from shame; with You erase my fear, and with him magnify him.

25 O our Lord, O our Lord, O our Intimate Friend, O our Beloved, accept our writings from us through Your Chosen One (Muḥammad), the ladder (to You).

26 Pour forth blessing and peace upon him (Muḥammad) who answered "Yes!" (Balā), first of all, on the Day of "Am I not (your Lord)?" (Alastu), before all who spoke.

27 Bless the best of Messengers, O You who through him bestow what is asked, together with the Family and the upright Companions, and accept my pen.

28 Grant that my pen be glad tidings of the one placed foremost (Muḥammad), and through him decree my pre-eminence, without harm or pain.

29 Bless the best of Prophets, who led the creatures with refined conduct (al-adab), O You who by his rank have sufficed me against my misconduct; and grant peace.

30 He is the one who, by his guidance, surpassed all other creatures, until his name appeared written upon Your magnified Throne,

31 in the Gardens and upon the (heavenly) vaults, upon faces and in caves; and with spears and swords he uprooted every idol.

32 He led the rightly guided to bliss with the best of his Remembrances, the wise (the Qur'an), through his Lord, the Everlasting, the Ancient: glory be to Him who never sleeps!

33 Pour forth blessing and peace forever upon him for whom, on the night he was born, those persisting in sin were driven away.

34 The night of the Prophet's birth (Mawlid) is the night when doubts are erased, the night when toil is erased and the sinner is purified.

35 In it are salvation and success, with joy and attainment; in it gain and righteousness, with the repelling of punishments.

36 It held manifest wonders, attested by the transmitters, like the (sacred Persian) fire that was put out, together with the dissolving of abasement;

37 and the lake of Sāwa, which had been magnified and revered by the Persians before the (true) religion, and was reduced to nothing;

38 and like the falling of the shooting stars, to drive the people of doubt (the devils) from eavesdropping on the Prophet's tidings; and they returned full of remorse.

39 In it the Stoned One (Satan) was driven from the heavens by the stars, and fled defeated, blameworthy, with his faction, full of grief and anguish.

40 It (the light) shone forth when the best of Prophets was born, who appeared (in the world); may He (Allah) who guided his heart with wisdoms send blessing upon him.

41 An immense light, by which whoever was in the Mother of Cities, Mecca, the best of sanctuaries, saw the palaces of Caesar.

42 In it the palace of Chosroes split, which before had been raised high, its vault soaring towards the heaven of Him who honours (Allah);

43 until even the throne was shattered, by the terror that enveloped it, before the light of the best of creation: O Lord, grant him peace,

44 after a blessing that never ceases, with the Family and the upright Companions; and through me renew the Path, without enemies or pain.

45 Pour forth blessing and peace upon him whose birth drove away towards others than us those who harbour hatred, and accept my services.

46 His birth (the Mawlid) is magnified, blessed, revered; honouring it is a duty for those who hold precedence (in faith).

47 Honouring it according to the Sunna leads us to Paradise; through it grace increases for whoever is sincere and honours it.

48 Whoever honours the birth of our Prophet, Gate of Guidance, will not be called to account tomorrow: so respect it and honour it.

49 Whoever honours the birth of the best of creatures, Aḥmad (Muḥammad), is like one who was present at Badr, without any illusion.

50 Whoever has spent wealth for his noble birth, without extravagance, even to the value of a single dirham,

PARTIE 2

Jazbu 2

51 he is like one who was present on the day of Ḥunayn and stood firm, and on the day of Badr, and aided the best of creation, he who gives understanding.

52 Whoever honours the birth of our Prophet, Gate of Guidance, will not be called to account tomorrow, at the Reckoning that silences.

53 Whoever has taken part in (the celebration of) the birth of the best of creation, honouring it, joyful, with sugar or with meat,

54 he has attained what makes joy everlasting, and will meet no harm on the Day the communities are gathered.

55 Whoever has prepared food for those who recited (the Mawlid) in his honour, with veneration, has stored up the treasures of the people of lofty aspiration.

56 And whoever has recited over something (the account of) the birth of the master of creation, to draw blessing from it, will see it grow in abundance.

57 And if (the account of) the birth of the best of mankind is recited over water, drinking it, by (the grace of) the Purified one, restrains the scheming of the humbled (foe).

58 Drinking that water illumines the heart, by (the grace of) the Answered one, revives the heart without flaw, and keeps one from wretchedness.

59 Celebrating the birth of the Bearer of glad tidings (Muḥammad) protects the family and the dwellings; in it is healing for the breasts, for every rightly guided one who belongs to him.

60 May the Everlasting (Allah), who makes my joy endure, bless the best of mankind, with the Family and the Companions, precious pearls, with a peace that enfolds them.

61 O Inspirer, who granted success, bless him who was created and surpassed creation in character as in form, and grant peace.

62 He was of middle stature, of noble and clear bearing; he was not excessive (in height), nor was he dark of complexion.

63 He was not corpulent, nor round and full of face; rather he surpassed all who rose among the descendants of Adam.

64 He stood taller than whoever walked beside him, at any time; he was generous and hospitable of soul, and he laughed by smiling.

65 He was majestic, of lively countenance, his whiteness tinged with red, long-lashed, large-eyed, of noble figure.

66 He smiled the most radiant of smiles, like lightning or like hailstones; and his laughter dispelled the darkness, like lamps in the gloom.

67 His face was round, he was slender, luminous, splendid, of amber complexion, and he spoke in measured cadence.

68 It was as though water of gold flowed upon his refined cheek; his limbs were slender and his nose of noble height.

69 Perfect of ear, deep-black of eye, with bright and slightly parted teeth, eyes veined with red, radiant; his face erased every sorrow.

70 He is the most perfect of creatures, manifest in form and in character; never has his like been seen in virtues, nor ever will be.

71 Our Aḥmad, our mercy, our Ḥāmid, our blessing, our Maḥmūd, our joy; and his generosity puts the rains to shame.

72 Truly I address the Beautiful (Allah), invoking blessing upon the Messenger and greeting with peace him who unites his company (with God), in my words.

73 Bless the Cloaked One (Al-Muddaththir, Muḥammad), the best of creatures, the Bearer of glad tidings, effacer of falsehood, the Purified, and his Family, and grant peace.

74 Bless the Enwrapped One (Al-Muzzammil, Muḥammad), dispeller of darkness, the Hoped-for, who pours his bounty on the needy, and his Companions, and grant peace.

75 Bless the Servant of God, His Beloved, the Remembrance of God, His Elect, the Sword of God, and his Family, and grant peace.

76 Bless the Company of God, His gift, the Gate of God, His Path, the Guidance of God, and his Companions, and grant peace.

77 Bless our master, our patron, our exemplary Guide, our beloved, our intercessor, and his Family, and grant peace.

78 Bless him who was educated (by God), possessor of sanctity, the educator, the best of Messengers and Prophets, and his Companions, and grant peace.

79 Bless the Gate of Bliss, the Straight Path (aṣ-Ṣirāṭ al-Mustaqīm), Muḥammad, the best of beings, and his Family, and grant peace.

80 Bless the glory of the Arabs: he removes distress, he raises ranks; and his Companions, and grant peace.

81 Bless the Effacer (Al-Māḥī), the Trustee, the one who relies (on God), the Guarantor, our guide to the Path, and his Family, and grant peace.

82 Bless the sea of seas, the lion against the foes, the healing of breasts, banisher of wretchedness, full moon of full moons, and his Companions, and grant peace.

83 He is the one who has led munificence to whoever comes asking for gifts; and whoever heads towards him in aggression meets ruin in terror.

84 He is the one through whom my hand reached out to my Lord, the Most Bountiful, and He gave me the best, without "give me" or "how much?".

85 His are wonders that came to no predecessor and that no successor can equal, by the grace of Him (Allah) who grants precedence.

86 Among them, the stone's greeting to him, the walking of the tree, the splitting of the moon for him, by (the will of) Him who possesses Permanence and Eternity.

87 The cloud gave him shade; he saw behind him as before him; his eyes would sleep, but his heart did not sleep.

88 Among them, flies avoiding his body and his garments; and likewise the easing of difficulties, by (the grace of) God, Giver of spoils.

89 Among them, the birds seeking intercession through him, the camel that complained to him, and the pure water that gushed from the hand of the Generous one.

90 The glorification (tasbīḥ) of food was heard in the palm of the best of mankind; the speech of a gazelle in words: a miracle of the Revered.

91 The speech of a lizard has come down among them in an established text; the moaning of a trunk has come down among the wonders of the Honoured.

92 Riḍwān (the keeper of Paradise) would visit his dwelling to honour him; among them (the wonders), the birds sent against the arrogant,

93 (when) he (Abraha) set out for the Sacred House (the Kaʿba) to demolish it, one among men led on by degrees to ruin, through his ignorance of the Magnified one.

94 And God, exalted, did to his army what He did, by the rank of him (Muḥammad), and made their scheme vain (casting it) into the sea.

95 Each of the arrogant died by the most baleful of stones: the Lord of mankind made them like morsels for a glutton.

96 And among the wonders appeared what the cave of the Exemplar (Muḥammad, the cave of Thawr) held; may He (Allah) who through him guided those of understanding send blessing upon him:

97 a spider that wove (its web) and a dove that settled (there), hovering, and thereby they hid those two (the Prophet and Abū Bakr) as under a veil of darkness.

98 The disbelievers came and followed the tracks of the Effacer (Al-Māḥī, Muḥammad), but saw nothing of him, and returned in pain.

99 He was concealed, together with the greatest Freed One (Abū Bakr), in the cave, within sight of their very gazes, and they saw no one.

100 The protection of the Guardian (Al-Ḥafīẓ), the Defender (Al-Māni‘), makes weapons needless for every humble servant who seeks the best of sanctuaries.

Jazbu 3

101 The winds aided him just as the spears aided him, and he had no need of weapons, through his Lord who honours.

102 O Lord, bless forever the Prophet Aḥmad (Muḥammad), his Family, people of right guidance, and his Companions, and grant peace.

103 O Lord, bless forever the Prophet who worshipped You, his Family, people of munificence, and his Companions, and grant peace.

104 O Lord, bless at every moment Your trustworthy Messenger, his Family, people of certainty, and his Companions, and grant peace.

105 O Lord, bless through the ages him who erased perdition, his Family, people of delight, and his Companions, and grant peace.

106 O Lord, bless every year the Prophet, the best of mankind, and his Family, perpetually, and his Companions, and grant peace.

107 O Lord, bless at all times the Eloquent one of recollected silence, his Family, people of devotion, and his Companions, and grant peace.

108 O Lord, bless by day the Prophet, pride (of the line) of Nizār, his Family, people of glory, and his Companions, and grant peace.

109 O Lord, bless in the morning the Prophet, rich in righteousness, his Family, people of success, and his Companions, and grant peace.

110 Pour forth blessing and peace, in the evening and the night, O You who are the Holy (Al-Quddūs), upon the chief of chiefs, the best of creatures, my ladder (to You).

111 O Lord, bless with peace the Prophet, perpetually, and the Family and the noble Companions, and through him accept my composition.

112 Bless the lion (Muḥammad) who healed (hearts) on the day of Badr, when he kept faith, with the Companions of pure faith (al-ḥunafā'), with his magnified covenant.

113 Grant peace to the Full Moon (Muḥammad) who dispelled the darkness of hearts and rose high, to those of the sublime stations and his company, and magnify them.

114 The best of mankind arose amid the choicest of companies, against the arrogant, like the full moon amid the stars.

115 A day on which the struggle grew fierce, a day on which the battle grew fierce, the day men knew one another, the day of good pleasure and of dismay.

116 That day was success for the rightly guided, and gain; for the one who ascends, and righteousness, for every Muslim.

117 A day on which the Lord of creation forgave the sins of those who took part in his battle, the grave as well as the slight.

118 The Companions, people of good, met there the companions (of Quraysh), people of harm; and both alike were furious lions, of lofty resolve.

119 They vied with one another for death, and each of them was valiant, longing for the meeting (with God) or to be struck down, for love of the Effacer of sorrows (Muḥammad).

120 And they fought those whose deaths the Intercessor of intercessors (Muḥammad) had foretold, until the dust rose between the coward and the champion.

121 Then there came down from heaven cavalry and a mighty army to the chief of the noble (Muḥammad), bringing joy without distress.

122 The Lord of mankind reinforced him with an army of mighty angels, for (increasing) the number, not for close combat: they struck down the arrogant.

123 And among them, when they arrived, was his glorified intimate friend, Gabriel — how excellent a support! — upon a mighty steed.

124 And they rushed to the fray with swords and spears, for love of righteousness and success, behind the supreme Imām (Muḥammad).

125 And among them was the one who realised (faith), our master, the divinely favoured, the most sincere of those who believed in the illustrious Hāshimite (Muḥammad):

126 his Truthful one (Aṣ-Ṣiddīq, Abū Bakr), the magnified, possessor of majesty, the revered, his patient companion in the cave, second only to the Most Knowing (the Prophet).

127 And among them was the one to whom every good was foretold, ʿUmar, our master, the man of counsel, the glory of every Muslim.

128 And among them was he who married the two daughters of the chief of the righteous (Muḥammad), the Two Lights, when they prospered through the remission of every sin:

129 our master, the adorned one, ʿUthmān, whom they slew while he was reciting the Book of Him (Allah) who gives abundantly.

130 And among them was he who dispelled idolatry, father of Al-Ḥusayn and Al-Ḥasan, gate of the sciences, the son-in-law (of the Prophet), father of the noble stars:

131 our master, the honoured, his magnified ʿAlī, who fells the enemies, the fearless lion, effacer of harm and of sorrow.

132 Through that day we have gained security from fear, from toil and shame, from anguish and remorse.

133 Through it (the day of Badr) we have been spared, with a view to the Gardens, expedition and humiliation; through it time has become propitious for us, with the acceptance of (our) services.

134 So let us praise God for our deliverance from whoever hated us and from every decreed evil, through the Chosen One (Muḥammad), placed before all.

135 Truly I address the Beautiful (Allah) for him (Muḥammad), for the upright Family and for his Companions, without their falling into obscurity, with "bless" and "grant peace".

136 O our Lord, O our Lord, O our Intimate Friend, O our Beloved, bless our master Muḥammad and grant peace, 137 and his Family, his Companions and whoever is attached to him among the Saints of his company; and accept my pen.

138 Be well pleased with the noble Companions, with a good pleasure that leads to me what I long for; and be with me, O Lord of mankind, without enemies or pain.

139 Accept my blessing upon our master, Gate of the heights, and accept this ode for Your noble Face.

140 O our Lord, bless the best of the Prophets ever sent, Muḥammad, increase the exaltation of his community, and grant peace.

141 O our Lord, bless the best of Messengers, the favoured one, Muḥammad; make my writing sweet as honey, and grant peace.

142 O our Lord, bless the best of Prophets, the exalted one, Muḥammad; through him accept my script, and grant peace.

143 O our Lord, bless the best of Messengers, the venerated one, Muḥammad; through him adorn my state with beauty, and grant peace.

144 O our Lord, bless the best of intercessors, whose intercession is accepted, Muḥammad; through him bring my aim to completion, and grant peace.

PARTIE 4

Jazbu 4

145 O our Lord, bless the Effacer (Al-Māḥī), who removed fear, Muḥammad; bring to pass what has gladdened me, and grant peace.

146 O our Lord, bless the best of Lamps, risen on high, Muḥammad, who washed away what grieved me, and grant peace.

147 O our Lord, bless the best of the Illuminating ones sent, Muḥammad, whose desire has been fulfilled, and grant peace.

148 O our Lord, bless the best of Heralds, who bestowed gifts, Muḥammad, who hastened my glad tidings, and grant peace.

149 O our Lord, bless him whose precedence has been understood, Muḥammad, who has put to shame whoever hates me, and grant peace.

150 O our Lord, bless him who has washed away my sloth, Muḥammad, who has honoured my odes, and grant peace.

151 O our Lord, bless the wisest of all the wise, Muḥammad, who has bound whoever challenged me, and grant peace.

152 Bless him who journeyed by night and ascended, upon al-Burāq, to heaven, Muḥammad; honour him with his company, and grant peace.

153 He spent the night piercing the layered heavens, aiming at union (with his Lord); and the Prophets, in accord, received him with honour.

154 They revered him, placed him foremost, honoured him and submitted to him in humility, and magnified his venerated rank.

155 They humbled themselves when they knew his rank, honoured meeting him and acknowledged his excellence and precedence.

156 They hastened (to receive him) with welcome, affability and courtesy, joy and closeness, for (the love of) his Lord who placed him foremost.

157 And each of them began to praise him, when he heard mention of the Intercessor of intercessors, together with the Trustworthy (Gabriel), the most eminent.

158 And each of them praised him, after rejoicing in his mission, and breasts expanded to give thanks for the blessings.

159 Then he withdrew from them and ascended, upon al-Burāq, to meet his Beloved (Allah), and passed through the veils of the Divinity, the All-Bountiful.

160 Then he returned to his dwelling, having obtained from Him every wish, and he removed hardship and whatever draws down retribution.

161 How excellent a Prophet and Messenger! How excellent he who granted us what we asked, through his Lord, the Beautiful, by his Remembrance (the Qur'an) and the Path!

162 The signs (wonders) of Ṭāhā, Aḥmad (Muḥammad), will never end; and the strength of the rightly guided has failed in recording them with the pen.

163 God sent him to all creation, reciting in measured tones a Remembrance sent down upon him, a guidance for whoever seeks knowledge.

164 How noble is that Book (the Qur'an)! In it are guidance and reward, in it the Word and the answer of our Lord, the Eternal.

165 It is the healing from every ill for whoever relies upon it; and whoever has refused it has been driven away, full of regret and remorse.

166 And whoever has deviated concerning it and not striven to repent will meet ruin from his Lord, the Avenger (Al-Muntaqim).

167 It is that through which whoever is guided by its guidance attains right guidance, and tomorrow (in the Hereafter) he will gain triumph, kept safe from punishments.

168 It is His clear Book, which the noble Trustworthy one (Gabriel) brought, by leave of the Lord of the worlds, a guidance for whoever embraces the most upright way.

169 It is that from which whoever turned away and did not ponder it has disobeyed the Lord of creation, becoming a laughingstock to those who blame.

170 It is that in which whoever stands firm, without turning elsewhere, doing good, will be a noble champion with the Appreciative, the Most Generous.

171 It is that with which whoever is content gains what suffices him, and does not meet, through (His) generosity, the torments of those who harm.

172 I praise my Lord for His Book, which surpasses every book revealed, with all my breast and with my mouth.

173 I give thanks to my Lord, the Immense, for His wise Book, and in it I have attained sciences that silence the one who stammers (in dispute).

174 The Book of my Lord is "the Book", according to the (Qur'anic) text "This is the Book"; through it I have been kept from reproach and from whatever brings sickness.

175 It (the Qur'an) is to me an intimate friend and beloved, freeing me from need of a physician; through it the wise man who seeks the best path loves me.

176 O best of Remembrances revealed, by the best of Lords who sent it down: lead to me the hospitality (of Paradise) from Him who possesses Permanence and Eternity.

177 O best of Remembrances, appearing from Him (Allah) who made my purity everlasting: make an easeful life everlasting for me, in security and in service.

178 You (O Qur'an) are my companion to the Gardens, O you who guard my dwelling for me, and you gladden my heart, O best of Remembrances, the perfectly established.

179 O best of Remembrances, recited in measure by the mouth of one who remembers and reads: drive towards others than me whoever hates me, be with me and give your judgement.

180 O best of Revelations, which shows to the one who ponders what was hidden: my Lord, through you, purifies my thoughts of every suspicion.

181 O best of Remembrances, who have gathered the most excellent sciences, and subdued my enemies for me and kept from me the harm of delusion.

182 You are my path and my intimate companion; you have led to me what surpasses all measure, through service to the Effacer (Al-Māḥī, Muḥammad), the Chief, who makes me astute by (the grace of) the Inspirer (Allah).

183 O best of Remembrances, who erased what grieved my heart, and it was erased: grant me to be among those who succeed, by (the grace of) Him who revealed you and who gives understanding.

184 Through you I asked my Sovereign to be a light for the wayfarer on the Path, and an ascetic drawn by divine attraction (al-jadhb), through what is manifest and what is obscure.

185 and that He who brings near (Allah) may lead forever to the Prophet (Muḥammad), together with the elect, my two salutations of peace, without end and without close.
