PARTIE I

Hammat Sulaymaa I

1. Sulaymā (the world) set out to turn me from (my) merits, to lead my reins toward calamities.

2. She displayed, to snare my heart, the beauty of her splendour, and turned gifts toward me with courtesies.

3. She set about pleasing my soul so that I might incline to her, and tried to bend my heart toward the gifts.

4. She addressed me with words that invite one to seek her hand, and displayed truthfulness of promise with desirable things.

5. Now she comes to me and grants me her prizes, now she brings me glad tidings.

6. But I have known — and my knowledge shall benefit me — that she is false in her words.

7. The promises of ʿUrqūb (proverbial breaker of his word) are her model, and her promises are nothing but betrayals.

8. She shows no clearness without showing, after it, turbidity, and she turns about with snares.

9 Nor does she show benefit without having put harm into it, and she hides an injustice within her aid.

10 So I turned away from her toward that through which Allah brings me into Gardens holding faithful dark-eyed maidens.

11 They are the beauties whom Salmā, Hind and Laylā cannot equal among the maidens.

12 They are the beauties whom none wins but he who has adorned himself with God-fearing through acts of obedience.

13 They are the beauties who dwell forever in the pavilions they have amid the Gardens (Qur'ān 55:72).

14 Ḥūr with Allah, wide-eyed, whom neither menses nor filth approach: they remain ever pure.

15 Ḥūr with Allah, of equal age, sheltered beneath the domes, kept safe from misery.

16 They have surpassed the lamps in light; their fragrance is intense; they put to shame the full moon that appears above the heavens.

17 They have a tender, pure, fresh body; the light of (their) breast illumines the darkness.

18 Their bodies are a mirror for their spouses, yes, for the light of their bodies shames the lamps.

19 Since the Lord of the Throne created them, no blemish has touched them, in qualities or in essence.

20 And they seek no substitute for their spouses; and the radiance of light grows every hour.

21 And they never cease to be virgins with them (their spouses) forever: how noble they are, pure maidens!

22 And they come neither to death nor to old age, but remain forever abiding, loving.

23 They are the beauties in whom the heart has delighted: it prefers them to Salmā and the Hinds.

24 And their dowry is fear of Allah, their Creator, with repentance from the soul's passion (turning) to acts of obedience,

25 with repentance and submission to a King Who has bestowed the Chosen One, treasure of creatures.

26 I have surrendered myself to a Lord Who has no partner, together with him whose following is my occupation and my need.

27 I have surrendered myself to a Lord Who has no likeness, together with him whose love is the farthest of my aspirations.

28 I have surrendered myself to a Lord Who has no peer, together with him whose way is the best of roads.

29 I have surrendered myself to a Lord Who has no helper, together with him whose religion is the best of religions.

30 I have surrendered myself to a Lord Who has no beginning, together with him who has gathered the best of paths.

31 I have surrendered myself to a Lord Who has no end, together with him whose nearness is the greatest of my concerns.

32 I have surrendered myself to a Lord exalted above (any) son, together with him whose praise is my law and my habits.

33 I have surrendered myself to a Lord exalted above (any) purpose, together with him whose bounty is the most hoped-for of my treasures.

34 I have surrendered myself to a Lord exalted above (any) likeness, together with him who has been saved from every calamity.

35 I have submitted to Allah, Lord of the worlds, through Muḥammad, the best of those who have gone and those who will come.

36 May He bless him Who raised his degrees above all degrees, in the past and in the future,

37 and the Family, the Companions and those who hold fast to him, with the purest blessing, through which (He) banishes follies.

38 May He bless him Who raised him, exalted above those who have attained the highest stations,

39 and the Family, the Companions and those who follow his Sunna, with the purest blessing, through which I gather the openings.

40 May He bless him Who raised his prophethood, until the people of the prophecies sought refuge in him,

41 and the Family, the Companions and those who seek right guidance through him, with the purest blessing, through which I gather felicities.

42 May He bless him Who gave him a miracle that put to shame, every one, the sorcerers and the soothsayers,

43 and the Family, the Companions and those who seek succour through him, with the purest blessing, through which I gather wonders.

44 May He bless him Who made manifest his precedence over the whole assembly of the earth and of the heavens,

45 and the Family, the Companions and those who seek rescue through him, with the purest blessing, through which I gather outpourings.

46 May He bless him, with a blessing through which I may be upright, He Who singled him out with the drawing near (Qur'ān 53:8) in the meetings,

47 and the Family, the Companions and those who revive his Sunna, with peace, without end of limits.

48 That is the protector with whom I have sought protection from the evil of my soul, of Satan and of infirmities,

49 and from the schemes of enemies and from my time, and from speech and the evil eye, at all times,

50 and from the changing of my states toward other than guidance, and from all misfortunes and sins.

PARTIE 2

Hammat Sulaymaa 2

51 Muḥammad: his remembrance is my intimacy and my joy, the light of my heart, of my limbs and of my repose.

52 He is my hope in the two Abodes: he is present with me at my death-throes, in my grave and at the Resurrections.

53 He is the Intercessor by whose rank the Forgiver (Al-Ghaffār) forgives me every disobedience and slip.

54 He is the sincere counsellor by whose rank the All-Merciful (Ar-Raḥmān) is gentle with me and guards me from delusions.

55 He is the one who joins, by whose rank my Lord brings me (to Him) and guards me from veils.

56 He is the generous one by whose rank the Maker (Al-Bāriʾ) honours me and guards me from humiliations.

57 He is the guarantor by whose rank the Bountiful (Al-Mannān) makes me happy and guards me from miseries.

58 He is the lofty one by whose rank the Most Tender (Al-Ḥannān) raises me and entrusts me with acts of worship.

59 He is the strong one by whose rank the Most High supports me and guards me from snares.

60 He is the bringer of glad tidings by whose rank the Guide (Al-Hādī) gives me glad tidings and guards me from every grief.

61 He is the one by whose rank the Benign (Al-Barr) protects me, guards me and shields me from harms.

62 He is the bountiful one by whose rank the Provider (Ar-Razzāq) provides for me and shields me from disgraces.

63 He is the intimate confidant by whose rank the Patron (Al-Wālī) teaches me, from Himself, hidden secrets.

64 He is the educator who without doubt turns me away from all obstacles and from vices.

65 He is the one who raises up, who without doubt casts upon me, for ever, a glance of purification from calamities.

66 He is the generous one whose gifts have been sublime with me, and he has led my reins at every hour.

67 For this reason I have bound myself to him, every year, to the debt of praise in rare verses.

68 I have indeed bound myself to him, every year, as long as my reason remains with me, to the debt of gifts.

69 And how could I leave off for a year the thanks owed to an intermediary, the loftiest of all intermediaries and means of approach?

70 Every year his gifts reach me; nay, at every moment he consoles me with favours.

71 Light is his tomb, an ocean is his genius; his sincere counsel has embraced all creatures.

72 He is the refuge in which the noble have taken refuge, when they understood that he is the one who relieves complaints.

73 And there has been no chief who attained a rank, but that he sought access (to Allah) through him, at some moment among moments.

74 His excellent forefathers sought access (to Allah) through him, and through him obtained from Allah the triumph of answered prayers.

75 They all obtained through him, before (his) birth, whatever they sought through him of weighty affairs and needs.

76 By his rank Adam won forgiveness, after the descent from rivers and gardens.

77 Through him Allah saved Noah (Nūḥ) in his ark, and his rank warded off misfortunes from Jacob (Yaʿqūb).

78 Through the Chosen One (Muḥammad) the Bountiful (Al-Mannān) brought Joseph (Yūsuf) out of a strong prison and out of those depths (of the well).

79 And the Companion of the Fish (Jonah, Yūnus) took refuge with the Lord and was saved through the Select One (Muḥammad), and drew far from every anguish.

80 Through him the fire of Abraham (Ibrāhīm) became coolness and safety (Qurʾān 21:69): and this is a wonder breaking the customary order.

81 Like the cleaving of Sinimmār's (palace) at his appearing; and the lizard one day addressed him with words.

82 And the (palm) trunk moaned out of longing and out of sorrow, with the moan of a bereaved mother grieved by the loss of her dead.

83 Among the wonders: the hastening march of the trees (toward him); and the wolf one day spoke to him with its voice.

84 Among them, by my life, is the Night Journey (Isrā') on which God took him, in spirit and in body, by night, to the heavens.

85 He spent the night journeying, and Gabriel (Jibrīl) journeyed with him, upon al-Burāq, to the farthest of limits.

86 And the prophets and all the messengers together learned from him the proprieties of worship.

87 He attained what he attained of a secret reserved for him alone, and he drew near and came down nearer still (Qur'ān 53:8) in intimate converse.

88 And (Allah) singled him out with that which no one has ever been granted, nor shall be granted to any of the past or of the future.

89 He returned in the night, before dawn, to make known what in the Law is negation or affirmation.

90 Those wonders never ceased to support him, for his intimate Friend (Gabriel) never ceased to bring signs.

91 Until he brought a Book that left the eloquent powerless, and the masters of fluency fell short of producing its like.

92 How noble a Book it is! It has healed ailments and rescued all the Companions from dullness.

93 It is the Book in which there is no doubt (Qur'ān 2:2), a guidance for whoever guards himself against the Fire through acts of obedience.

94 It is the guidance and the straight path for us: whoever has spurned it has met with miseries.

95 It is the cure for all who suffer from a malady; it saves those endowed with reason from error and calamities.

96 And whoever seeks a bond with Allah while turning away from it, the rope of union has already escaped him.

97 It is the path in which there is no crookedness, for whoever journeys toward the Giver of desired goods (Allah).

98 Command and prohibition, promise and threat together have been set down in it, as guidance toward good deeds.

99 Whoever perseveres in its service, seeking the Face of Allah, shall surely be favoured with gifts.

100 And whoever at all times holds fast to it, that one is among the people of sainthood.

101 For it is the firmest handhold (Qur’ān 2:256): whoever grasps it shall tomorrow win Gardens with the Lord.

102 And to whoever clings to it in his worldly life, it shall grant on the Day of Resurrection glad tidings and blessedness.

103 And whoever clings to it, ever reciting its text with reflection, shall attain sublime things.

104 And whoever turns aside from it in his hours, keeping apart, it is the multitude of vices that has turned him away.

105 There have turned him from it things that number up to seven vices, insidious calamities:

106 sin, pride, persistence in (frivolous) play, love of the world, reliance upon creatures;

107 likewise weakness of certainty, which is the sixth; and they have made them seven with the multiplying of innovations.

108 How excellent is he who brought it to us from the Possessor of Majesty (Dhū l-Jalāl), and led us from delusion to the virtues!

109 He is our refuge in this world and the Hereafter, in every calamity, here or in the morrow to come.

110 Saviour, protector, intercessor, helper and bulwark: he wards off from us trials and misfortunes.

111 So I entrust my affair, here and tomorrow, to none but him, after my Lord, Lord of creatures.

112 O noblest of creation, I am your servant, as long as I live, through praise and through defence by means of poems.

113 And I have not sought the flower of the world which the hands of Zuhayr (ibn Abī Sulmā) plucked for the verses of praise he composed.

114 Rather I have praised you, O my master, seeking from you good pleasure, after you have erased my sins.

115 Upon you, the Family and the Companions be the best blessing with peace, through which I attain distinctions.
