PARTIE 1

Minanul Baaqil Qadiim 1

1. The Everlasting (Al-Bāqī) has cured me of illnesses, and has overthrown whoever denied in opposition.

2. To Him my gratitude for my life, (lived as) a servant and a servitor, who has triumphed through the signs.

3. I thank Him with the gratitude of those who drank of His sweet water and were brought near to the Gardens.

4. I have won a life such as is not seen for others than me, a miracle made manifest by the leave of the Best.

5. The Munificent (Al-Jawād) bestows on me the finest steeds, and my request becomes compliant.

6. The Everlasting has given me life without causing me to die, without strife or gloating (of enemies).

7. The Everlasting has given me the mightiest Book, and I meet none who has grown arrogant.

8 On my behalf He has rewarded my mother and my father with abundant good that never ceases to endure.

9 He has benefited me, through the Chosen, the accepted Intercessor — upon him His two peaces —, with the benefit of the most beneficial.

10 My pens have called to gratitude toward Him Who has subjected creation to me, while I abide in safety.

11 My Lord is my Sovereign, my intimate and the Beloved, and He has already effaced from me the cause (to resort) to a physician.

12 He has cured me of every defect and illness, and led health to me in every aim.

13 I have been healed of the faults of my soul by taking refuge with Him Whose gates will never be shut.

14 He is the Generous, the Most Generous, the Honourer, and from Him generosity does not depart from me.

15 Muḥammad is my means of approach and my shield (junna) against every evil and harm, and my garden (janna).

16 There goes from me a peace, after a blessing, to him, with his Family and the most excellent of his company.

17 Our Messenger Aḥmad has raised all of me: upon him the best of the blessings of the Most High.

18 I have adorned for him virgin (unprecedented) praises among those who ignored my standing; and He has made the soul clear.

19 My heart has become clear through my Lord being my intimate, my beloved; and for me He has made my little abundance.

20 He has turned toward me the sweetness of the two Abodes, and in both He has made me protected (lit. "two neighbours").

21 He has benefited me with what appeared and what was hidden, and His being for me with my wishes has not been hidden.

22 I have rejoiced in Allah, the Generous, in the Messenger and his party, and I have obtained from Him the best of requests.

23 My gain is the praise of him through whom the Everlasting repelled a harm that headed for me, and it was repelled.

24 The Wise has made me an arbiter — and He is the Judge (Al-Ḥakam) — and from Him come to me wishes and wisdoms.

25 The All-Aware and the All-Knowing lead to me that beneath which lie the sciences and teaching.

26 The All-Aware has banished ignorance from my heart: I have become, through Him, worthy to spread knowledge.

27 The All-Knowing has freed me from error, and I have become just, without failing.

28 The Wise has effaced the trial that had befallen all my being: O, my gift has come!

29 To me has come the gift of the Generous, and all that I used to long for from Allah.

30 The verses of the Sender of the Book are my feast of welcome, and I am set apart from harm.

31 When I recite a verse I attain wishes from a Sovereign Who grants possession, Who has already given security.

32 The peace of an Everlasting One Who never ceases to be most generous (be) upon him who conveys generosity to me.

33 (Upon him) the two most lasting peaces of Him Who led to me, in exchange for everything, good pleasure, and it yielded.

34 A gift from me to the best of creation: may He Who guided and fashioned bless him.

35 Stretching my hand toward other than Him Who led wishes to me without harm, and made all of me secure,

36 I deem it, in travel and at home, among what contradicts the good pleasure of the Muḍarite (the Prophet).

37 To Allah, in the two Abodes, through al-Māḥī, (is stretched) my hand, bound to the greatest good pleasure.

38 To me my Lord, through the Chosen, has led all that I asked, with good pleasure, delivered.

39 My gift to the Chosen (is) forever, without toil, harm or hardship.

40 Whoever has thought that he could ever please him with what appeared like my service,

41 I have refuted his thought by my being the Servant (al-Khadīm), with that the like of which every servant fell short of.

42 That gladdened him — may Allah bless him — in the Family, the Companions and whoever befriends him.

43 The distress of whoever distressed me among the enemies — upon him (the Prophet) the two peaces of the Destroyer of aggressors —

44 (falls) upon everyone who distressed me before and did not repent: in this world and the Next, a fetter.

45 The Guide (Al-Hādī) has guided me by the standing of the guide (the Prophet), just as He accepted through him my striving (jihād).

46 My Lord has turned (toward me), according to the measure of the greatness of the Essence of the Generous, magnified favours.

47 He drives to me what I desire, without end or harm, just as in Him my journey has reached its end.

48 The Everlasting has driven to me a hospitality without cease: "Be!" and it is — for me He directs the aim.

49 (By) the honouring of Him Who has no end, the gifts hasten to me.

50 The bounty of the Generous has hastened to me and the generosity of an Everlasting, Loving One: I do not part from generosity.

51 God has willed that I be honoured, intimate and beloved, and through Him I am honoured.

52 I am well pleased with Him and He is well pleased with me (cf. Qur’ān 98:8), and He has been for me with security in my aims.

53 The Beautiful (Al-Jamīl) has come to meet me — how excellent! — with the beautiful, and toward other than what He chose for me I do not incline.

54 He has banished what He was not pleased with for me and veiled my secret and my fault, and has bought my wares.

PARTIE 2

Minanul Baaqil Qadiim 2

55 The challenge of whoever challenged me is the challenge of one against whom the Avenger (Al-Muntaqim), the Maker (Al-Bāri'), brings forth time.

56 When I ask of my God, He draws (it in); and if I repel (something) through God, He takes it away.

57 My Lord, the One, has bestowed on me Oneness, ever since He bestowed on me "Say: He is Allah, One" (Qur'ān 112:1).

58 To Him my ink and my pens against the enemies, and never do I meet whoever has aggressed.

59 The abasement of whoever challenges Allah, the Majestic (Al-Jalīl), is the abasement of one abased above whom is every abased one.

60 O you who regard as lord other than God, and as friend other than the most excellent of creation,

61 my Lord has torn the light from your breast: be, through the illuminator, an illumined seeker.

62 To the Light (the Prophet) I addressed, in the darknesses, a praise that spared me enemies and shocks.

63 The praise of the Messenger of Allah — may Allah bless him in the Family and whoever befriends him —

64 frees from swords and spears: how excellent the brave one, how excellent the effacing warrior (al-Māḥī)!

65 To the Sea (of bounty, the Prophet) I addressed, upon the sea, a praise through which I became like a sea.

66 I have presented to the most excellent of creation, on dry land (al-barr), the best praise, and he bestowed on me with kindness (bi-birr).

67 There has set me forward, on land and sea together, the praise of him who joined land and sea.

68 He has turned the wishes to me, on land and sea, whose being the best of creation has not remained hidden.

69 Toward me, on land and sea, the best of creation has inclined the best of openings, with wealth.

70 There has honoured me, on land and sea, the praise of him whose praise overthrew my enemy with a crash.

71 My gift, on land and sea, is a eulogy of him through whom harm has turned back from me.

72 Muḥammad is pious (barr, "land") and a sea (of bounty): his like was not seen in the past, nor will it be seen.

73 Muḥammad: may Peace (As-Salām) bless him with peace, in his Family and his Companions, the lions.

74 He has repelled the turning of harm from my side: whoever turns to harm me is fettered.

75 I have stored as treasure Allah's being for me forever, and His being for me without hardship.

76 My Lord has been for me, and the Prophet has been for me, with what effaced my fault and kept my secret for me.

77 It has gladdened me that my God is the One, and that the best of creation is a lion against whoever denied.

78 Allah has guided me with the guidance (of the community) to which came from Him the Trustee of the religion.

79 Muḥammad is my means of approach to my Intimate, my Beloved, Who makes my little abundant.

80 I extol Him to Whom my gratitude goes, and He — the Most High — is perpetually the One I thank.

81 To Allah my praise and my thanks for my being the servant of him through whom He manifests the heights.

82 To Allah my praise and my thanks, perpetually, for him for whom my striving has been praised.

83 The Generous, the Honourer, has honoured me, and through the Honoured (the Prophet) generosity has come to me.

84 The best of all the worlds is Aḥmad, our Praiser, our Praised, Muḥammad.

85 An Everlasting One has turned security to me without fear, Who has spared me the causes of fear.

86 I have rejoiced in Allah, Who has made me secure from every evil, forever, with favours.

87 Allah has favoured me with being made secure, and has purified the heart of conjecture.

88 To me Allah leads, through al-Māḥī, the Prophet, what no one sees under any tent.

89 The Trustworthy (Gabriel), through the Trustworthy (Muḥammad), leads to me what makes bodies comely with vigour.

90 The Trustworthy has guided me with the hidden, and I have won the open and the concealed.

91 Al-Māḥī has effaced the turning of harm toward me: I have become free of need of sword and spears.

92 The Intercessor has come to meet me with the glad tidings that I am the servant of the Light and the Bearer of glad tidings.

93 The Bearer of glad tidings has guaranteed me clarity from turbidity and bestowed healing.

94 The Bearer of glad tidings has honoured me with lasting glad tidings: that I am the intimate, the beloved and the servant.

95 The Merciful (Ar-Raḥīm) has guided me: I do not go astray, and from the way of Allah I am not misled.

96 Muḥammad: may Allah bless him in the Family, the Companions and whoever befriends him.

97 He leads wishes to me without troubles, in this abode and in that abode.

98 My past sorrow has been turned toward others than me, and my being the servant, the servitor, has been recognised.

99 The clarity of all of me, without lack, has adorned my worship and adorned my services.

100 I have intended gratitude to Allah for what He made lawful for me, and He has been for me with security and gain.

101 My face is turned toward the Everlasting, and He leads to me the goal of the foremost.

102 The Generous, the Honourer, has conversed intimately with me; the Intercessor, the Honoured, has conversed intimately with me.

103 The Qur’ān and the ḥadīth lead to me that beneath which lie exegesis and transmission.

104 The Sender (of the Book) has driven to me the best of the Remembrance, and the Everlasting has been for me without guile.

105 The peace of Him Who has been for me with my aims (be) upon a Bearer of glad tidings who effaced my illnesses,

106 with his Family, his Companions, the Muslim men and the Muslim women: how excellent the best of the worlds!

107 I have borne witness that Allah is One Lord, and no denier inclines toward my person.

108 I have raised my praises to the most excellent of creation, and He has led to me, with my wishes, the sūras.

Minanul Baaqil Qadiim 3

109 An Everlasting, Generous One, exalted above all likeness, has turned to me what is hidden from my peers.

110 The Benefiter (An-Nāfiʿ) has benefited me with a benefit that surpassed (all others), and I do not meet whoever refused concord.

111 There has appeared to me what remained hidden from others than me, and it is perpetual gladness for the one followed (the Prophet).

112 The Chosen has conversed intimately with me without any dispute, and wherever I stretch my hand, he provides for it.

113 Upon him the two peaces of an exalting Nourisher, Who never ceases (to dispense) with beneficial generosity.

114 The Everlasting has extended to me the reward according to His measure, from Him and from His Messenger according to his measure.

115 My gift from God and the Messenger has turned toward me, and I have obtained the best of requests.

116 The wishes have turned toward me without end, and with good pleasure what is desired is driven to me.

117 From God and the Messenger has come the best reward of an accepted striving.

118 The Sender (of the Book) has conversed intimately with me through the Book, and I have won what protects from reproach.

119 When I write or read a letter, I attain wishes deposited in that letter.

120 Mine are the glad tidings of all the letters, and they turn no harm toward me.

121 Mine are the benefits without troubles, in this abode, in safety, and in that abode.

122 Guidance, light, good pleasure and blessing came upon me suddenly in praising him who is the pride of whoever reaches him.

123 The Generous came to meet me in the year Aksash (1321 AH / 1903-04) with the reward of what I wrote in the year Kasash (1320 AH / 1902-03).

124 He surprised me by making every letter I wrote be for me with a pure reward.

125 I was the guest of a Generous One Who bestowed, in Shawwāl, (gifts) that put sciences and riches to shame.

126 On Wednesday the Most Generous led to me that beneath which lie generosity and munificence.

127 He Who is exalted above all likeness has come to meet me, with that through which I become absent from my peers.

128 Toward me He has led the reward in a mighty measure: glory be to the Lord of the Footstool (al-Kursī) and the mighty Throne!

129 The One (Al-Wāḥid) has conversed intimately with me among the deniers: (saying) that I have become the gladness of the praisers.

130 The One (Al-Aḥad) has conversed intimately with me among the idolaters, with what from Him became ruin for the doomed.

131 Allah — exalted! — is One; Allah is the Eternal Refuge (Aṣ-Ṣamad), Whose loftiness is manifest.

132 He is no begetter, nor was He begotten, nor does He need anything; whoever He guides is not blamed.

133 To Him is my address; and He destroys, for me, whoever denied; and there is none equal to Him (Qur'ān 112:4).

134 Grant me, by Your noble Countenance, my intention, O You to Whom (belongs), through the Chosen, all my being.

135 Drive to me, by Your noble Countenance, O Generous, in what I have intended, rewards that do not fade.

136 You are the One Who has fulfilled what I hope for, O You before Whom faces are humbled (Qur’ān 20:111).

137 Aḥmad gives thanks to his Lord, the Generous, for the gladness, and gladness is praised.

138 The best of the Generous, Who drives (the gifts), Who is praised, has joined my gladness to the gladness of Aḥmad.

139 Lost is the reward of whoever has turned toward other than my Lord and other than the Chosen, the educator.

140 Upon me is a covenant: to be grateful to my Lord for him who drove away the reprehensible things.

141 The two purest peaces of the best Lord, the Everlasting, (be) upon the Prophet, the model of the foremost.

142 The reward of my Lord and the reward of the Elect have led to me a good pleasure, and from it (every good) is chosen.

143 I am well pleased with my Lord, and my Lord is well pleased with me, without harm or illnesses.

144 The Giver of security (Al-Mu’min) has honoured me with faith, when idolatry appeared in my time.

145 He Who never ceases to be Bestower, All-Knowing has won for me the Qur’ān and the sciences.

146 The Everlasting, the Generous, has extended blessings to me, as He protected me from marriage with idolatresses.

147 The Everlasting has turned to me clarity from turbidity, and the evils of destiny do not come toward me.

148 The Everlasting has extended to me a reward with gain, and has been for me with what is permitted me.

149 He has torn (evils) away for me, and tears nothing from me; and truly I, through Him, am a shelter and a refuge.

150 He leads to me, and leads nothing from me except to whom I have willed, with leave from me.

151 He has benefited me, and through me He benefits creation; and He has led to me, through the Prophet, the sūras.

152 I have triumphed through Allah's being for me and my being for Him, through him, by the standing of the best of creation.

153 I help every Muslim man and woman, and God has already spared me the wrongdoers.

154 The Generous has banished my harm and my illness, and has been for me, forever, with my aim.

155 My heart has become clear and my body has been healed, and I shall not cease to be clear and healed.

156 To me He drives my aim without illness or harm, and has already spared me wasting away.

157 He has made clear to me with the clarifying of Him from Whom nothing is hidden; He has bestowed on me what is most hidden.

158 He has turned to me the reward in His mighty measure, in what I worshipped with of well-strung pearls.

159 I thank Him with the gratitude of all the lovers together, and through the Prophet He has gathered my wishes for me.

160 He has blessed me in our much and in the little, with a blessing according to His sublime measure.

161 I have intended to be grateful with what He loves, for He is the Intimate, the Beloved and the most Beloved,

162 for my means of approach, my standing, my shield (junna): Muḥammad, the best of creation, my garden (janna).

PARTIE 4

Minanul Baaqil Qadiim 4

163 (Upon him) what cannot be counted of blessing and peace, from Him Who through him has led to me the most excellent speech.

164 The peace of Him with Whom what is never runs out (be) upon him to whose eulogy I hasten.

165 My gift, from Muḥarram until Jumādā the Second, has brought a precious gift (lit. "of deep red").

166 From Rajab until the end of Dhū l-Ḥijja, for him there are upon me blessings, as proof.

167 The Benefiter has benefited me through the Benefited one, the Foremost, the Preferred, the Exalted.

168 The two purest peaces of Him Who gifted me the wishes (be) upon him for whom my being (servant) has not remained hidden.

169 To the Chosen I have addressed virgin (unprecedented) eulogies, and through his praise harm has turned back from me.

170 To the Chosen I have addressed virgin blessings, with a peace through which his company glories in me.

171 The Everlasting has guided me without straying, and through the Prophet He leads His lawful to me.

172 The Everlasting, the Mighty (Al-ʿAzīz), has turned might to me, and through me He glories in His party, the mighty.

173 It has gladdened me that the Generous is the Most Generous, and I shall never cease to be honoured.

174 I was the guest of the Generous and He made the hospitality good for me, and through me He guided dwellings together with villages.

175 To Him is my address, and He has made my heart good; and it is not I who repel nor I who draw.

176 For me You have drawn and from me You have repelled what You chose for me, and the reverse, O Possessor of favour.

177 You have given me possession, You have given me the power to dispose of a possession, the finest disposal, that rose above kings.

178 Your "Be!" and it is leads my request to me with security: already I am well pleased with You.

179 You have given me the Qur'ān and the sciences, and through me You have benefited the ignorant and the learned.

180 You have driven benefit to me without harm, You have turned good toward me without evil.

181 You have driven to me the guarded, well-composed (knowledge); You have accepted from me the repeated pearls.

182 You have guided me with Your wise Remembrance, and turned to me the most beneficial judgement.

183 You have accepted my praise in Your mighty measure, concerning him to whom You gave the well-strung pearls.

184 You have kept me safe from every evil and trial, and I have become free, while others than me were fettered.

185 You have turned to me the freedom of a sovereign, a king, free of need of kings and of the (long) wayfaring.

186 You have given me refuge, through the Chosen, with You, (as) intimate and beloved forever with You.

187 I have turned all of me to the Generous and the Beautiful, and to the Loving, the Lord: from Him I do not swerve.

188 The Generous has honoured me, how excellent the Benefiter; and how lovely the Benefiter, and He is the Exalter!

189 The peace of an Everlasting, Protecting and Subtle One (be) upon him whose generosity circles around me.

190 The peace of a Sufficing One, the best Repeller, Who has benefited, the most beneficial Exalter, (be) upon him who has been exalted.

191 The blessing of the Everlasting, the Protector, the Subtle (be) upon the Prophet, the Chosen, the compassionate.

192 Upon him to whom (go) from me blessing and peace: to him from Allah be blessing and peace.

193 I have addressed to the Chosen, every day, services of praises that removed my blame.

194 To the Prophet I have addressed, every night, services of praises that made my attainment sublime.

195 He has been pleased with me to Whom (belong) my creeds, my speech and action, and He is my leader.

196 I was the guest of Him Who made my hospitality good for me, and He led to me what He did not show the (spiritual) Poles.

197 He has turned to me what others than me do not see, a miracle that endures by the leave of the Best.

198 Toward me Allah has led, in the two Abodes, something through which He made me protected (lit. "two neighbours").

199 The Benefiter has benefited me with a benefit that surpassed (all others), and has already effaced hypocrisy from my breast.

200 The Generous, the Honourer, has honoured me, by the standing of him whose name is the Honoured.

201 To me the blessing of the Chosen has led what it led, without harm, well-pleasing, and it yielded.

202 To me He has led what is gladness for me, and toward me He does not turn the chills (of misfortune).

203 The gift of God and the Messenger has turned toward me, and I have obtained my request.

204 The Lord of night and day has turned to me the good of both, together, without rebuke.

205 Toward me He to Whom the days belong has led that beneath which lie fasting and the night vigil.

206 To me He to Whom the months belong leads that beneath which lie purity and purification.

207 To me He to Whom the years belong leads what, through me, has led the obligatory and the Sunna.

208 He is the Generous, the Benefiter, the Honourer; and His servant, the best of creation, is the Honoured.

209 He has repelled harm from turning toward me, by His mighty measure: how excellent is my Intimate!

210 He has turned to me what will never cease to be the perpetuated gladness of every successful one.

211 It has gladdened me to be without troubles, in this abode and in that abode,

212 guest of the Generous, the Beautiful and the Loving, Lord of creation, and through me forefathers are honoured.

213 To Allah I have addressed all praise, and He has already effaced the harm of error and of intent.

214 Upon the Prophet, the best of creation, the best blessing and the best peace, that brings glad tidings to his company.

215 There has become clear to me the being (for me) of the Messenger of Allah — upon him the best of Allah's blessings —

216 the certainty of my heart, after my Lord and the Book: I have become his servant, and he has driven away reproach.

217 Muḥammad is the best of all creation, and he has been for me, by Allah, the best of beings.
